

SEARCH

ALTERNATIVE MEDICINE

What's in Those Supplements?

By ANAHAD O'CONNOR FEBRUARY 3, 2015 12:00 AM 514 Comments

Target's "Up and Up" brand of St. Johns Wort and Valerian root contained none of those ingredients. Yana Paskova for The New York Times

- Email
- Share
- Tweet
- Save
- More

The New York State attorney general's office accused four national retailers on Monday of selling dietary supplements that were fraudulent and in many cases contaminated with unlisted ingredients.

The authorities said they had run tests on popular store brands of herbal supplements at the retailers — Walmart, Walgreens, Target and GNC — which showed that roughly four out of five of the products contained none of the herbs listed on their labels. In many cases, the authorities said, the supplements contained little more than cheap fillers like rice and house plants, or substances that could be hazardous to people with food allergies.

At GNC, for example, the agency found that five out of six samples from the company's signature "Herbal Plus" brand of supplements "were either unrecognizable or a substance other than what they claimed to be." In pills labeled ginkgo biloba, the agency found

PREVIOUS POST

New York Attorney General Targets Supplements at Major Retailers

NEXT POST

Slow Runners Come Out Ahead

Your health questions answered by Times journalists and experts.

Ask

RECENTLY ASKED

Your Questions | All »

BODY

Does practicing tai chi help to reduce the risk of heart disease?

Follow

357 followers

BODY

Are yearly physicals really necessary?

Follow

479 followers

Do statins affect erections in men?

Follow

675 followers

only rice, asparagus and spruce, an ornamental plant commonly used for Christmas decorations.

At Target, the agency tested six herbal products from its popular “Up and Up” store brand of supplements. Three out of six – including ginkgo biloba, St. John’s wort and valerian root, a sleep aid – tested negative for the herbs listed on their labels. But the agency did find that the pills contained powdered rice, beans, peas and wild carrots.

Here are the products that were analyzed by the attorney general, along with the test results that were described in cease-and-desist letters that the agency sent to the four retailers.

From GNC, Herbal Plus brand:

Ginkgo Biloba:

- No ginkgo biloba found
- Did detect allium (garlic), rice, spruce and asparagus

St. John’s Wort

- No St. John’s Wort found
- Did detect allium (garlic), rice and dracaena (a tropical houseplant)

Ginseng

- No ginseng found
- Did detect rice, dracaena, pine, wheat/grass and citrus

Garlic

- Contained garlic

Echinacea

- No echinacea found
- Did detect rice in some samples

Saw Palmetto

- One sample contained the clear presence of palmetto
- Other samples contained a variety of ingredients, including asparagus, rice and primrose

From Target, Up & Up brand

Ginkgo Biloba

- No ginkgo biloba found
- Found garlic, rice and mung/French bean

St. John’s Wort

- No St. John’s Wort found

SPECIAL FEATURES

The Well Guide to Activity Trackers

We tested some of the latest and most popular trackers to compare how they work and the various features they offer. Here’s what we found.

Faces of Breast Cancer

We asked our readers to share insights from their experiences with breast cancer.

Latest Discussion
How did breast cancer affect your career?

QUIZZES

The Bugs in Your Home

Take our quiz to find out about the creepy, crawly critters living in your home.

The Sleep Quiz

How does sleep affect health, relationships and well-being?

Can You Read People’s Emotions?

The “Reading the Mind in the Eyes Test” measures ability to understand others’ emotional states.

TIMES HEALTH | Most Viewed | Most E-Mailed

Keeping Your Hair in Chemo

Safety of Herbal Supplements Pulls Prosecutors Together

One Twin Exercises, the Other Doesn't

A Time to Avoid Anxiety Drugs

The Far-Reaching Effects of a Fall

No Cure for Bad Timing

BROWSE BY SECTION

Body

Love Well

Doctors

Mind

Family

Voices

Fitness

Well Pets

Food

- Found garlic, rice and dracaena (houseplant)

Garlic

- Contained garlic
- One test identified no DNA

Echinacea

- Most but not all tests detected Echinacea
- One test identified rice

Saw Palmetto

- Most tests detected saw palmetto
- Some tests found no plant DNA

Valerian Root

- No valerian root found
- Found allium, bean, asparagus, pea family, rice, wild carrot and saw palmetto

From Walgreens, Finest Nutrition brand

Ginkgo Biloba

- No ginkgo biloba found
- Did detect rice

St. John's Wort

- No St. John's Wort found
- Detected garlic, rice and dracaena

Ginseng

- No ginseng found
- Detected garlic and rice

Garlic

- No garlic found
- Detected palm, dracaena, wheat and rice

Echinacea

- No echinacea found
- Identified garlic, rice and daisy

Saw Palmetto

- Contained saw palmetto

From Walmart, Spring Valley brand

Ginkgo Biloba

This page can't be displayed

- Make sure the web address <http://srv.dynamicyield.com> is correct.
- Look for the page with your search engine.
- Refresh the page in a few minutes.

FOLLOW WELL ON  TWITTER  FACEBOOK

- No ginkgo biloba found
- Found rice, dracaena, mustard, wheat and radish

St. John's Wort

- No St. John's Wort found
- Detected garlic, rice and cassava

Ginseng

- No ginseng found
- Found rice, dracaena, pine, wheat/grass and citrus

Garlic

- One sample showed small amounts of garlic
- Found rice, pine, palm, dracaena and wheat

Echinacea

- No echinacea or plant material found

Saw Palmetto

- Some samples contained small amounts of saw palmetto
- Also found garlic and rice

Related: "New York Attorney General Targets Supplements at Major Retailers"

Related: "Letters Outlining What Was Found in Herbal Supplements"

A version of this article appears in print on 02/03/2015, on page A1 of the NewYork edition with the headline: 4 Retailers Told to Stop Selling Supplements.

ALTERNATIVE MEDICINE, BODY, DIETARY SUPPLEMENTS AND HERBAL REMEDIES, GNC HOLDINGS INC, HERBS, TARGET CORPORATION,
WALGREEN CO, WALMART STORES INC

Top News

Go to the Home Page »

Biden Rebukes Senate Republicans Over Letter to Iran

Vice President Joseph R. Biden Jr. said he could recall no other instance in which

G.O.P. Senators' Letter to Iran About Nuclear Deal Angers White House

The letter, signed by 47 Republican senators, warns